

Stroll back through time...

This 2.5 mile (4 km) circular walk leads through recently planted woodland at Pound Farm and the fields and woods of Parham's Oak Farm to reveal fascinating glimpses into England's history.

From a right royal Tudor tale to traditional woodland ways, these living, working landscapes have many time-honoured secrets to share:

- Follow in the footsteps of Mary Tudor and her loyal army of thousands, along the remains of the very route taken on her famous journey from Framlingham Castle to London to claim the throne of England in July 1553.
- Find out about coppicing - an ancient form of woodland management still being practised in Queen Mary's Wood today.
- See the mighty oaks of Queen Mary's Plantation sown in Victorian times by the children of the parish.

Queen Mary's Lane

From Framlingham to the Throne

Look to the past...

What changes has this landscape seen since Tudor times?

Visit: www.QueenMarysLane.info

Please follow the Countryside code

- Always stay on footpaths and bridleways
- Keep dogs under close control
- Protect plants/animals
- Take your litter home

This route passes through a working farm.

By arrangement of JC Larter & Co in co-operation with the Woodland Trust
Part-funded through Higher Level Stewardship provided by Natural England
Design & Illustrations: www.wearadrab.net. Editorial: www.xtrabead.co.uk

© JC Larter & Co, 2013